

Priya Raman

Graduate Software Engineer

|            |                                                                                                                                                                                           |                     |  |
|------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------|--|
| CONTACT    | priya@raman.dev · Manchester, UK · github.com/priyaraman                                                                                                                                  |                     |  |
| SUMMARY    | Computer science graduate with a compilers dissertation and two internships behind it.                                                                                                    |                     |  |
| EDUCATION  | BSc Computer ScienceUniversity of ManchesterFirst Class Honours <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>Dissertation: register allocation for a teaching compiler.</li></ul> | 2022 – 2025         |  |
| SKILLS     | Languages Rust, Python, CTools Git, LLVM, Linux                                                                                                                                       |                     |  |
| PROJECTS   | tinycAuthor · github.com/priyaraman/tinycA teaching compiler for a C subset, used by two undergraduate courses.                                                            | 2024                |  |
| EXPERIENCE | Software Engineering InternArm · Cambridge <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>Cut a test suite from 40 minutes to 9 by sharding it.</li></ul>                               | Jun 2025 – Sep 2025 |  |
| AWARDS     | Dean's Award for Academic ExcellenceUniversity of Manchester                                                                                                                   | 2025                |  |